

ABSTRACT

The present invention provides a contact lens, preferably a daily disposable contact lens, which can be used to collect one or more analytes of interest in a tear fluid, and in turn, determine the physiological state or health of an individual.